2 The information we collect

Depending on your relationship with us, we may collect and use:

- your name, address, telephone number and email address;
- date of birth and identification documents;
- previous addresses and residency history;
- employment, income, affordability and referencing information;
- right to rent, immigration or visa information, where required;
- bank details, rent payment history and transaction records;
- property details, tenancy details and landlord details;
- guarantor, occupier and emergency contact information;
- correspondence, complaints, maintenance requests and call notes;
- photographs, inspection notes, inventories and property reports;
- website, enquiry and marketing preference information;
- technical website data such as IP address, browser type, device information and cookie data.

We may also process limited special category data where necessary, for example information about disability, health, vulnerability or accessibility requirements. We will only do this where lawful and necessary, such as to make reasonable adjustments, protect vital interests, comply with legal obligations or support the proper management of a tenancy.

3 How we use your information

Depending on your relationship with us, we may use your personal information to:

- respond to enquiries and provide property information;
- arrange viewings, valuations and property appraisals;

- assess tenant applications and affordability;
- carry out identity, right to rent, anti-money laundering and fraud checks;
- prepare, manage and administer tenancies;
- collect rent and manage payments, arrears and accounting records;
- arrange repairs, inspections, inventories and maintenance;
- communicate with landlords, tenants, guarantors, contractors and other relevant parties;

4 Our lawful basis for using your information

We only use your personal information where we have a lawful reason to do so. These may include:

Contract – where processing is necessary to provide services to you or take steps before entering into a contract.

Legal obligation – where we must process information to comply with the law, including right to rent checks, anti-money laundering requirements, accounting, tax, deposit, housing, safety and regulatory obligations.

Legitimate interests – where processing is necessary for our business interests or those of our clients, provided your rights do not override those interests. This includes managing properties, assessing applications, communicating with relevant parties, preventing fraud, recovering debts, handling complaints, improving services and protecting legal rights.

Consent – where we rely on your clear agreement, for example for certain marketing communications or where consent is otherwise required. You can withdraw consent at any time.

Vital interests – where processing is necessary to protect someone's life or safety, for example in an emergency.

5 Tenant referencing and checks

If you apply to rent a property, we may carry out referencing, affordability, identity, credit, fraud prevention and right to rent checks. These may be carried out by us or by third-party referencing providers.

Referencing may involve checking information you provide against records held by credit reference agencies, employers, previous landlords, public sources and other relevant organisations.

A credit or identity check carried out for tenancy referencing will not usually affect your credit rating, although a record of the search may be visible to you and relevant organisations.

Final decisions on tenancy applications are not made solely by automated means.

6 Who we share information with

Where necessary and lawful, we may share personal information with:

- landlords, tenants, guarantors and permitted occupiers;
- referencing providers and credit reference agencies;
- contractors, inventory clerks, surveyors and maintenance providers;
- deposit protection schemes;
- utility providers, councils and public authorities;
- insurers, solicitors, courts, tribunals and debt recovery providers;

- accountants, auditors, professional advisers and regulators;
- property portals and marketing platforms;
- software, CRM, cloud storage, email, IT and website providers;
- partner estate agencies, but only where you have requested a related service such as a sales valuation.

We only share information where necessary for the relevant purpose, where required by law, or where you have asked us to do so.

7 International transfers

Some of the systems and service providers we use may process personal information outside the UK. Where this happens, we will ensure appropriate safeguards are in place, such as UK adequacy regulations, approved contractual protections, or other lawful transfer mechanisms.

8 Marketing

We may contact you with information about properties, lettings services, property-related services or updates that may be relevant to you.

You can opt out of marketing at any time by using the unsubscribe link in our emails or by contacting us at let@huntleys.net.

We will still send service-related messages where necessary, such as tenancy, property management, rent, maintenance, safety, legal or account communications.

We do not use cookies to collect unnecessary personal information. Where any optional cookies or similar technologies are introduced in the future, we will update this policy and provide appropriate cookie controls where required.

10 How long we keep information

We keep personal information only for as long as necessary for the purpose for which it was collected.

As a general rule, we may keep records for up to 7 years after our last meaningful contact with you, or longer where necessary to comply with legal obligations, resolve disputes, deal with complaints, support accounting or tax records, enforce agreements, respond to regulatory enquiries, or protect legal rights.

Where information is no longer needed, we will securely delete, anonymise or archive it.

11 How we protect information

We use appropriate technical, organisational and physical safeguards to protect personal information from unauthorised access, loss, misuse, alteration or disclosure.

These measures include access controls, secure systems, staff training, data minimisation, document controls and secure communication processes where appropriate.

Some rights are subject to legal limits. For example, we may need to keep certain information to comply with legal obligations or defend legal claims.
